Puchong’s new pulse

Mutiara Indah brings lustre to this emerging growth corridor
Puchong’s new pulse

New Straits Times

The double-storey terraces sport a fashionably modern façade, highlighted by attractive colours, large windows, brick tiles and a paved porch wide enough to fit two cars. Corner units come with a glass side door that connects the garden with the living room.

Timber strip flooring and earthy colours bring an elegant and calming ambience into the master bedroom.

Also up for grabs

Mutia Indah’s two-and-a-half-storey link bungalows boast two master bedrooms and three bedrooms in 1,487 sq ft of space.

The double-storey terrace offers three plus one bedrooms, and at 2,089 sq ft, represents a more affordable option from RM340,000.

Comfort and space are fundamental to what Mutia Indah promises, as seen in this open concept living and dining area, decked out in eye-soothing colours. At the entrance, a quiet foyer can be created to greet guests and provide storage for shoes.

Upstairs, a cozy family living area can provide the perfect hideaway for private bonding time.

In the show unit, pop-art screams off the walls in the children’s bedroom, which comes with practical storage areas and a desk to ensure that homework is done.
If you hadn’t sat up and noticed what’s going on in the south-eastern end of the Puchong corridor in Selangor before, you ought to do so now.

With the maturing of Putrajaya and Cyberjaya further south, the rapid development of Setia Kemayoran and the completion of a network of expressways to serve the area, such as the South Klang Valley Expressway and Lebuhraya Damansara Puchong, the area is fast becoming a viable hotspot.

Already, a few landmarks have sprouted up here, such as Giant and Tesco hypermarkets, world-class educational facilities in the form of Universiti Putra Malaysia and the Unikolokung University College of Creative Technology, and a proposed commercial venture known as Puchong Gateway.

Providing further character are a bevy of townships and gated-and-guarded enclaves offering residential options to match almost any lifestyle aspiration and budget.

Among them: Mutia Indah, an 82-acre resort-style project offering spacious green living and round-the-clock security.

Developed by Ehsan Armada Sdn Bhd, a subsidiary of public-listed Malton Bhd, Mutia Indah has been designed to raise Puchong’s lifestyle bar with its range of contemporary-design houses set amidst landscaped parks and private gardens.

Among the units it will contain are link bungalows, semi-detached and terraces of various sizes and prices.

Currently available are 24 link bungalows priced from RM173,500 and 146 terraces from RM340,600, as well as a limited number of corner-lot double-storey superlink terraces with extra land, from RM673,000.

To get a better idea of how Mutia Indah is pushing the lifestyle benchmark, we take a peek inside its superlink showhouse built at the site:
