

Angels waiting for MRU decision

SERDANG Angels have replied the show cause letter issued by the Malaysian Rugby Union (MRU) for playing abroad without sanction but have decided to keep mum on the issue for now.

A team official who declined to be named disclosed that the letter was sent to the national body yesterday but said a statement on the incident will only be made once the MRU council have come to a decision on the matter.

The official added that it took time to reply as various departments within the university had to be consulted. They were issued the letter on Feb 10 and had until Feb 24 to reply.

The Universiti Putra Malaysia team have been provisionally suspended for playing a series of friendly games against Bangkok-based universities without permission earlier this month.

They have yet to play a game in the ongoing Super League which enters the fourth round of matches this week.

The team, however, are still hopeful of playing in the competition and continue to train on a daily basis.

Defending champions Keris Conlay were given a 28-0 walkover for their match against Angels which had been scheduled for Saturday. By Fadhli Ishak
